... Ingalls that the ... nominated ... General Hancock ... [illegible]

... should have seen fit to bestow on the men by whose arms it had been conquered He did not think the north was at all defended by the protectors of state ... on the other side It was a little singular that in all the years which had elapsed since the war there had never come any states that had been in rebellion ... as representatives in either branch of congress elected by republican votes When he looked over the rolls of the south and found how few who had served in the union army were found in the councils of the nation he was not surprised at witnessing such demonstrations as were witnessed when pension bills were up for action The ... should be thankful ... to foot the entire pension bill as France did after the Franco-Prussian war And yet here ... the jailers and murderers of Andersonville Belle Isle and Libby ... sitting ... that which they attempted to pull down legislating for the country they endeavored to destroy and trying to pinch and belittle and mince the amounts to be paid the mutilated and disabled survivors of the army of the union The senator from Missouri had asked in a burst of indignation where all this was going to end I will tell him and Ingalls and every senator on that side of the chamber whether he likes it or not what we intend to do It is going to stop when the arrears of pensions are paid when the limitation is removed and every ... on the rolls is paid from the day of his disability or in case of a survivor from the date of the soldier's death and when every surviving soldier of the army is put on the rolls for service only That is when it is going to stop and if you don't like it make the most of it

After eulogizing the Grand Army Ingalls said in conclusion We propose to pass this bill Imitating the language used on the other side of the chamber I hope it will pass the other house of congress, and if it does let the president veto it at his peril [Very general applause on the floor and in the galleries]

Blackburn replied at length When the senator from Kansas undertook to speak of the chief executive of the country in the terms he had seen fit to employ, and which were deliberately prepared he (Ingalls) certainly could not take issue with him (Blackburn) if he concluded it was not entitled to a response or reply in a presence so august and distinguished as the senate of the United States He was not here to defend the president from such unwarranted attacks He knew but one sin which the president had committed in the eyes of the senator from Kansas It was that having defeated the senator's party at the polls he had given to the American people for three years past so efficient, so honest, so clean handed an administration as to doom the last of republican aspiration to disaster The gentleman from Kansas in his intemperate zeal had not spared the sanctity of the grave. He had dragged up for abuse and villification such men as had adorned with their unblemished swords the brightest pages of American history McClellan and Hancock were to be denounced in the senate as allies of the confederacy Would it not have been in better taste and at least more creditable to the courage and candor of the senator if he had made such charge before both of these men were buried?

Ingalls I did often [Applause]

Blackburn—Then so much the worse for the senator from Kansas What warrant or ground had he had for that except that they were both different from himself, at least in political action if not in many other regards Blackburn then referred ... in a bantering manner to Ingalls military record He was he said judge advocate of Kansas volunteers While General Black was bleeding on the Kansas frontier while McClellan was commanding the army while Hancock was weltering in his blood on Cemetery Heights at Gettysburg, the senator from Kansas always behind the rear of the army was prosecuting Kansas jayhawkers for robbing hen roosts Now what are you to think of the senator who will leave his seat as presiding officer and come to the floor an illustration of a partizan zeal which I have never seen equaled attacking all decent people from the president of the United States down civilians as well as military men and letting no subject escape the venom of his tongue? I have never opposed the pensioning of disabled union soldiers and I do not know the confederate who has done so

Blackburn then proceeded to refute the assertion that the southern states had never sent union soldiers to congress He concluded Partisan-man as I am partisan as I confess myself to be I seriously trust I may never find my term of public service prolonged to the day when without warrant I will turn deliberately to traduce and abuse the dead who living were honored by all honorable men [Loud applause]

HOUSE

Thomas of Illinois introduced a bill prohibiting the use of likenesses portraits or representations of females for advertising purposes without consent in writing Referred

The house then resumed consideration of the Alabama contested election case of McDuffie against Davidson

O'Farrell of Virginia supported the majority report He ridiculed what he called the claims of the republican party that the negro vote of the south was invariably cast for the nominees of that party That had been true in years gone by but was not now The negroes were now learning who their friends were The man of destiny who had arisen in 1884 had taken into his big national heart all sections and extended the aegis of his protection over north and south over white and colored without discrimination The republican party sought to hold the negroes through their churches and societies through a system of intimidation and bulldozing Colored men of the south were as abject slaves to preachers as they had been the day when Lincoln with hesitating hand signed the emancipation proclamation It was time that the democratic party should take a stand and sustain and support the colored men in their right to vote as they pleased

Kerr inquired where the gentleman learned that Lincoln had signed the emancipation proclamation with hesitation

O'Farrell in reply referred to the painting of the signing of the proclamation hanging on the walls of the capitol

Boutelle of Maine said the gentleman from Virginia was unfortunately situated to know the history of his country at that time

O'Farrell objected to such remark as cowardly

Houk of Tennessee said the gentleman from Virginia had stated that all colored people who used to vote the republican ticket now voted the democratic ticket Was that the reason the democratic majority in Virginia had fallen from 50 000 to nothing and that the democrats had only one or two members in the house from Virginia while the republicans had six or seven? If the democratic party had ever contributed anything to the emancipation of the colored people it was on the principle of a kicking gun ... [illegible] ... It is a very peculiar kind of bravery in any man ... stand up before the ... can people ... the ... of the martyred Lincoln ... one small ... civilized world

After ... taken of a political nature the minority resolution declaring McDuffie entitled to the seat was rejected yeas 1.., nays 1.. and the majority resolution declaring the sitting member entitled to his seat adopted without division

The house adjourned

The Contest on the Burlington

CHICAGO March 6—The strike has now resolved itself into a game of freeze out and that is practically the situation this morning If the engineers carry out the promise made yesterday it will ... evening the Burlington road from doing any through business But Burlington officials say they are prepared to abide by their decision and confine their business to points in the territory covered by their own system They claim to have filled sixty per cent of the places of the strikers and say they only want seventy five per cent as the road before the strike had more men than it needed They expect to be ready to receive live stock and perishable freight Friday

The New Engineers

AURORA Ill March 6—The Burlington road is doing two classes of business at this point one is hauling freight and passengers to a limited degree the other running a training school for engineers with a full quota of pupils Striking engineers and railroad officials are both confident No overt acts are charged to the strikers They were a little annoyed by the mayor's order forbidding their committees visiting non union engineers at the trains when passing through the city, for the purpose of inducing them if possible to leave their engines On side of this they have no complaint At the yards it can be plainly seen that something is wrong Everything is done slowly and deliberately as if there was plenty of time Fifty special police guard the yards as soon as a train reaches the limits two specials jump on the engine and ride in the cab until the cars pass on the other side of the city Division Superintendent Alexander and Train Master Bessler say only one third of the freight business is being done on the Chicago division and the cars are lightly loaded ... the fact that the company is refusing to haul stock In fact all business in this department is being strictly confined to the Burlington system The passenger business is in shape as far as trains are concerned but the cars are by no means crowded Superintendent Alexander said for the present but three through trains will be run The company has in its training school about thirty men They are carefully examined by the master mechanic and then allowed to practice running an engine up and down the yards Officials claim the new men are doing well and in a short time will be competent to take out trains Disinterested citizens say however that many of them are failures and all of the trains stalled at the depot was on account of the inability of the new engineers to fix some part that had gotten out of repair until the master mechanic would arrive The fast mail for Chicago came in to day two and a half hours late The engineer was totally blind in one eye The claims of officers that they have all the men on the Chicago division that they want is true They admit the new hands are not up to the standard but assert that ... comes with each day's service They also say the reason they don't want more men is that as long as the Burlington can do no through business with roads only a limited number of engine hands are required

De Lesseps' Scheme.

PARIS March 6—The Panama canal loan bill proposes that the bonds shall bear not less than 4 per cent interest that the prize money shall not exceed 1 per cent of the capital borrowed that the nominal value of the bonds shall not be under 500 francs and that the redemption of the loan and prize money shall be guaranteed by investment in state securities Other articles authorize the canal company to convert into similar bonds those already issued and bind the company to deal only with French firms for all implements supplies etc necessary to complete the canal

A Mayor's Veto

BALTIMORE March 6—Mayor Latrobe last night sent to the city council with his veto an ordinance recently passed which gave the council power to appoint directors in the Baltimore and Ohio railroad without the nomination of the mayor The measure was believed to have considerable political significance and strong pressure was brought to bear to have it vetoed An effort to pass it over the veto was unsuccessful

Sudden Death of Miss Alcott

NEW YORK March 6—Miss Louisa M Alcott died this morning

BOSTON March 6—For a long time Miss Alcott had been ill and been residing in Highlands for her health Thursday she drove in town to visit her father and caught cold which settled at the base of the brain and developed into meningitis She died at Highlands early this morning Miss Alcott was born on the anniversary of her father's birthday and it is singular that she should have followed him so soon to the grave

A Frightful Accident to Miners

ISHPEMING Mich March 6—A frightful accident happened at the Cleveland mine last night in which five miners lost their lives The men were blasting out a drill hole at the bottom of the shaft using dynamite for the purpose when the charge exploded prematurely mangling the five out of human semblance It is supposed the explosive was ignited by the heat of the gaspipe which was charged with it and which had been heated and straightened in the blacksmith shop just before being used

The Witter Trial

DENVER March 6 To-day was the eighth day of the Witter murder case The prosecution had in all their evidence when court adjourned this evening It is thought the defense will occupy a week or ten days in presenting their side of the case

READY FOR THE BOOM.

An Enthusiastic Meeting of the Board of Trade

The Rock Island Railroad Ready to Begin Work

Right of Way Privileges Nearly all Secured

The Higgins Smelter to be Built at Colorado City

The adjourned meeting of the board of trade which was held last evening at the city hall was very largely attended and the proceedings proved to be unusually interesting Quite a number of the prominent citizens of Colorado City were present who manifested a deep interest in the business which was transacted regarding the smelting proposition ... was called to order by the senior vice president of the board A L Lawton and the minutes of the previous regular meeting were read by the secretary and approved

The board of directors announced that the new members elected since the last meeting were James D Pourtales, W L McLain and F De Witt Peltz

Mr Reuben Berres of the committee on railroads reported that the committee had had some correspondence with President Evans of the Denver Texas and Gulf railroad concerning the running of the main line through the city This correspondence had resulted in nothing of a definite character as the officials of the road had not yet had time to consider the matter

Dr W J Bartlett of the advertising committee reported that he had secured subscriptions amounting to $201 for the board of trade pamphlet but that he had ceased soliciting contributions until the funds for the smelters and the Rock Island railroad had been secured

When the report of the special committee appointed to confer with the officials of the Rock Island railroad regarding the right of way for the road in this city was called for Mr John Campbell addressed the chair, and stated that the committee on Monday had a very satisfactory interview with Mr M A Low who has charge of all the Rock Island's interests west of the Missouri river He said that the committee had received a definite proposition from Mr Low, but that the committee did not think it advisable to report the exact terms of the proposition He said that the proposition of Mr Low involved certain conditions, among which was the raising of about $20 000 for the right of way privileges He stated that the line of the road as it approached and entered the city had been plainly indicated by Mr Low, but ... for various prudential reasons of which the board would be informed at another time deemed it inadvisable to state the exact course which the road would pursue He would state however that it entered the city on the north at a considerable distance above the residence portion There would be a cut about twenty feet deep which would be provided with an over crossing The conditions involved in the propositions of Mr Low called for a certain right of way and certain lands The committee had already secured options on nearly all the land He thought that the board should give the committee to complete the object for which it had been appointed It was that Mr Low had assured the committee that the Rock Island company expected to spend not less than $100 000 in getting into the city and in the way of improvements here A large part of this sum would inure to the merchants of Colorado Springs In the matter of what improvements the company would make in this city Mr Low could give the city no definite information He did state that Colorado Springs would be the terminal point of the Rock Island road in Colorado and if the road made any extensive improvements in the way of shops etc in Colorado they would be made here The committee of course would have to secure money to carry out their agreement with Mr Low and would call on all citizens for subscriptions The railroad company expected to begin work in a very few days in the north part of the town and the committee expected a ready and liberal response to their demand for funds

Mr Campbell's remarks were frequently applauded and on motion the committee was continued

Mr Lawton from the special committee appointed to confer with Messrs Higgins and Holden regarding the location of their smelting plants at Colorado City reported as follows Concerning the Holden smelter the committee reported that matters stood just as they did when the committee met Mr Holden and the gentlemen associated with him ... at The Antlers After a conference of about an hour's duration Mr Holden informed the committee that he would submit a definite proposition to the meeting to be held last evening At that conference Mr Holden stated that there was but one thing which prevented him from making that proposition at that time but that this matter would be fully and finally settled before they returned to the city on Monday The committee held another conference with Mr Holden yesterday afternoon at which the committee were in confidence informed of matters which had to be determined before Mr Holden could decide on anything definite regarding the site of his plant The committee were of the opinion that Mr Holden and the gentlemen associated with him in the enterprise meant business and that something would be heard from them in the course of a day or two

Regarding the proposition of Mr H Higgins Mr Lawton stated that a written proposition had been ... by that gentleman which he ... handed to the secretary ... Mr Higgins agreed ... to erect ... a smelter ... Colorado City of ... daily capacity ... should be given him ... when the smelter was completed that he should be allowed to have a three inch main connection with the Colorado Springs water main ... have a little more land than was originally deeded to Mr Howbert to be held by him in trust for smelting purposes In case the sum of $25 000 in cash could not be raised he would take real estate in Colorado Springs or Colorado City to the value of $12 500 and the remainder in cash

Mr Lawton stated that the committee had assured Mr Higgins that they would do all in their power to comply with the conditions contained in his proposition He stated to the meeting that the committee had done nothing since the last meeting of the board in the way of soliciting subscriptions for smelting purposes They felt that it would be best to wait until Mr Holden had submitted his proposition in order that the committee might know just what work was before them He had but one exception to make with reference to Mr Higgins proposition and that was in regard to the connection desired by Mr Higgins with the city water system He said that the council had voted to allow Mr Higgins the privilege of running a connection for fire purposes only

Captain De Coursey moved that it was the sense of the meeting that Mr Higgins' proposition should be accepted and that the committee should make a contract with him with such modifications as they should deem advisable for the best interests of the parties involved The motion was adopted without a dissenting vote

On motion of Mr Reuben Berrey, the special committee on the Rock Island's right of way were given full power to continue the work before them and to raise the requisite funds.

Captain De Coursey stated that the thanks of the entire community were due to Messrs Bott and Love of Colorado City for their liberal and open handed efforts to secure the smelters He offered a resolution that the thanks of the board of trade and citizens meeting should be extended to these gentlemen and that the secretary should furnish them with an engrossed copy of the resolution. The resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote

With regard to Mr Higgins' proposition Mr Lawton stated that ... he felt that his smelter was assured

Mr Howbert urged upon those present the necessity of a full attendance at the next meeting of the board when matters of such vital importance which were so intimately associated with the future prosperity of the city were to be acted upon.

On motion of Mr Howbert the meeting adjourned until next Friday evening when it is expected that both special committees will be able to report their work completed

The Internal Revenue Bill

WASHINGTON, March 6—The democratic majority of the ways and means committee have submitted to the full committee the internal revenue bill Section 1 of the bill provides for the repeal of all taxes on manufactured chewing tobacco, smoking tobacco and snuff and special taxes upon manufacturers of and dealers in leaf tobacco to take effect July 1 88 Rebate for the full amount of tax on unbroken packages of smoking and manufactured tobacco and held by manufacturers and dealers on July 1 will be allowed if the claim is presented before September 1 Section 2 provides that manufacturers of cigars shall each pay annually a special tax of three dollars and dealers in tobacco one dollar Manufacturers of cigars cheroots or cigarettes will not be required to pay a special tax as dealers when the products are sold at the place of manufacture The act is to take effect July 1 Section three provides for an appropriation of twenty thousand dollars for expenses incidental in carrying the above into effect

Presentation of the bill was the signal for a vigorous onslaught by republican members upon their democratic colleagues They roundly denounced the majority for their conduct in the preparation of this and the tariff bill and their indignation was heightened when a proposition was put and carried despite their objections to consolidate in one measure the tariff and revenue bills It was suggested by the republicans in view of the apparent determination of the majority to begin immediately formal consideration of the bill that manufacturers and producers whose interests might be affected should be afforded an opportunity to address the committee on the subject This proposition did not seem to meet favor at the hands of the majority and after considerable discussion the committee adjourned until to morrow

Sullivan's Engagement.

NEW YORK March 6—The World's London cable says Arrangements for the Mitchell Sullivan fight have been completed The fight will in all probability take place in France on Friday Angel a sporting broker on the stock exchange, has been chosen referee Burnett and Ashton will back Sullivan and Baldock and Pony Moore will back Mitchell Jem Smith and Jake Kilrain will be present and rumor has it that after the fight with Mitchell Sullivan will settle old scores with both of these

A Hot Battle

NEW YORK March 6—Jack Hopper was whipped last night by Jack Dempsey It was not a decisive victory by any means The New York boy fought from the second round with one hand and only succumbed when by another accident his left hand was injured It was a hot battle from start to finish and both men showed wonderful pluck and gameness

The boom has now commenced, and from present indications will increase in volume Some people imagine that a "boom" simply means an unusual activity in one particular branch of trade, namely "real estate." This is not so. The word 'boom' is a general one and refers to activity in all lines of business This is particularly true in the present instance Our business men feel its influence and report a general activity in their respective branches of trade. In clothing and gentlemen's furnishing goods there is a steady demand for well-made goods at low prices I am able to meet this demand, I have recently received some very nice things in the clothing line In fact I receive something new every week, and I am kept constantly busy in arranging the new goods as they come in. NEW YORK'S SOUTHERN SOCIETY

Something Concerning It and Its Recent Banquet

New York city is the mecca of American talent and ambition outside of politics so the city has a society for almost every state and nation. Prominent among these are the New England [illegible] [soc]ieties, and of late years the New York Southern society. This last has its annual dinner on some day signalized by a prominent southerner and this year Washington's birthday was the date. The southern character of the gathering is illustrated by the officials, John C Calhoun presided at the banquet, and Francis S [illegible] is president for the ensuing year. The former is grandson of the noted nullifier.

J. C. CALHOUN F. S. RIVES H. L. COLE.

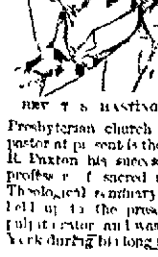

THE SECOND ANNUAL DINNER OF THE SOUTHERN SOCIETY

All the speeches were of an intensely patriotic character and in the music "Dixie," "Hail Columbia" and "The Star Spangled Banner" following in the order named, elicited loud applause. Some 500 persons were present, including Gen Horace Porter, who made the most humorous speech of the evening and many other prominent Yankees. Mayor Abram S Hewitt made the welcoming speech, which was responded to by Mr Hugh L Cole, who touchingly alluded to New York as the city of refuge to which many ruined southerners turned their steps after Appomattox. Edward Atkinson delivered a very elaborate address on the growth of southern industries, and Ballard Smith spoke on the Southern Press. The object of this society is to bring into close social relations the many southerners resident in New York, and to make a welcome for others who may come, and to cultivate friendship and patriotism and the addresses at the late banquet showed that the object was being accomplished.

Recipe for Trapping Grizzlies

"The proper method of setting a trap in the woods for bears is to place it at the foot of a tree near a trail where the bears are accustomed to pass. Then hang a piece of any kind of meat, excepting that of [illegible] bear against the tree, directly over the trap and so high that the bear can only reach it by standing upon his hind feet. He then cannot get the bait without stepping into the trap. After the trap is set the pan and jaws should be lightly covered with dry leaves and if there is any blood upon the meat it is well to sprinkle a little upon the trap. After which every object not pertaining to the locality should be removed, and all tracks obliterated by brushing or covering with dirt or leaves"—Outing.

THE BIG M. E. CONFERENCE

IT WILL BE HELD IN NEW YORK IN MAY

Delegates from All Parts of the World Will [illegible] [illegible] District [illegible]

[illegible] will by the election [illegible] all the vacancies left by the death of Bishops Simpson, Harris and Wiley. It is probable also that several new episcopacies will be created. Some of the present bishops are advanced in years and [illegible] [illegible] in their ardious labors. Besides this the question will probably arise as to the expediency of [illegible] bishops resident [illegible] [illegible] Europe. In the Church [illegible] The colored Methodists will urge their old plea for a bishop of their own race but they will be met by the usual objection [illegible] As the Methodist church is organized no bishop has priority over another excepting in point of age. None have especial jurisdiction over any particular territory. The world is their field, and they go about from country to country in turn supervising the conferences and establishing harmony in the church. For this reason it is expected that the proposition to establish foreign episcopacies will meet with considerable opposition.

At the last general conference a missionary bishop was given to Africa, but it was an innovation not likely to be repeated. He is the only missionary bishop in the Methodist Episcopal church and does not hold the same rank as his brothers. If Europe, India, China and Japan are voted episcopacies the holders will be endowed with the same authority as our own bishops. Before the election of bishops however the conference will listen to reports regarding the condition of the church from every part of the world. Committees will be appointed [on] questions of church discipline will be adjusted and new general measures suggested. In the last two or three conferences Dr Daniel Curry was looked upon as the leading spirit. His death leaves the field open to a number of able men. The man best adapted to fill the position is said to be Dr James M Buckley, the editor of The Christian Advocate. He is still in the prime of life. As a skilled debater he has few equals, for he possesses one of those clear, logical minds which can grasp a subject in all its ramifications almost in an instant. He has been a leading member of the general conferences of 1872, 1876 1880 and 1884. His father was a Methodist preacher who gave his son all the advantages of education that lay in his power. At first he was sent to the Pennington seminary but his education was completed at Wesleyan college, Connecticut. After his graduation he studied theology for some time until he was received on trial at the New Hampshire conference. He at once took rank as an eloquent preacher. After making a trip to Europe in 1863 he resumed his ministerial labors in [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] throughout the country his editorial work on The Christian Advocate being especially noteworthy. He is the author of several small works entitled "An Appeal to Persons of Sense, and Reflection to Begin a Christian Life," "Modern Miracles," and "The Theatre." He has also figured successfully as a lecturer.

Another man who is likely to appear prominently in the coming conference is Dr J M Reid corresponding secretary of the missionary society. He is far past the summer of his life, being nearly 68 years of age. Dr Reid is a native of New York city. He graduated with high honors at the New York university in his 19th year. He joined the New York conference in 1844 and very early in his ministry commanded important appointments. In 1858 he was elected president of Genesee college at Lima, N Y. In 1864 he became editor of The Western Christian Advocate and four years later was appointed editor of The Northwestern Christian Advocate. He was chosen missionary secretary in 1872 with Drs Dashiel and Eddy. He has survived them both. He is the author of a widely known work his scholarly work entitled Doomed Relig[illegible] [di]stinguished [illegible] as an able speaker.

Dr Alpha J Kynett, corresponding secretary of the [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] Dr Kynett was a member of the general conference of 1864 and then brought forward his plan for church extension. Since 1867, when he succeeded Dr Monroe to his present position he has been the leading authority on the subject. He was re-elected in 1868 on the general conferences of 1868, 1872, 1876, 1880 and 1884. No stronger proof could be adduced of his able management of the department and his charge. He is regarded as one of the best business men in the church.

One of the most popular men in the general conference of 1884 was Dr Richard Sutton Rust, secretary of the Freedmen's Aid society. He will be a member of the coming conference. In stature he is a little above the medium height, of full habit, vigorous frame and possessed of a countenance beaming with benevolence. His manners are free and affable, and his [illegible] [illegible] nature renders him a universal favorite. His friends hope to see him elected to an episcopacy during the May conference. Dr Rust was born at Ipswich Mass and at an early age was left an orphan. He prepared for college at the [illegible] academy. However, at [illegible] graduated from Wesleyan college in 1841. A year afterward he became principal of Pennington school [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] a [illegible] [illegible] from col[lege] [illegible] [New] England confer[ence] [illegible] afterward [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] he was [illegible] [illegible] [univer]sity [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible] CHAPLAIN McCABE. JOHN H VINCENT. BISHOP TAYLOR.

Rev John H Vincent of Sunday school fame is not without many supporters as a candidate for an episcopacy. At present he is the corresponding secretary of the Sunday School Union and Tract society. He is a capital speaker, a popular lecturer and a widely known man. His name is familiar throughout the land, from Maine to California as the author of scores of Sunday school books.

Colorado will send an active and popular man to the conference in the person of Rev Earl Cranston the agent of the Western Book concern. He is a protege of Dr William Taylor the missionary bishop of Africa. At the age of 21 he graduated from the Ohio university, and the same year enlisted in the army. He came out of the civil war with the rank of a captain. For the past eight years he has been presiding elder of the Southern District of Colorado conference, which embraces 70 000 square miles of territory. He has been largely instrumental in promoting the Denver university. He is a fine preacher and has considerable experience in financial matters. His friends in Colorado hope to see him made a bishop during the coming conference.

Dr Charles C McCabe familiarly known as Chaplain McCabe on account of his having served in that capacity in the One Hundred and Twenty second Ohio regiment during the civil war is regarded as a sure candidate for a bishopric. He was born in Athens O Oct 11, 1836. As a boy he seems to have been of a religious turn of mind for it is said that he was converted at the age of 8 years. He was educated at the Ohio Wesleyan university. When the war broke out he entered the Federal army and was captured on the battlefield of Winchester. His subsequent experience in Libby prison he has recited frequently before large audiences upon the [lectu]re platform. After his release he was promoted into the service of the Christian commission, in whose interests he made large collections. When the war closed he was appointed to pastoral work at Portsmouth, O, where, through his efforts a large and handsome church was erected. He subsequently served as agent and assistant correspondent, respectively, of the [Board] of Church Extension. The latter position he now holds. In connection with this work he has been eminently successful in raising a loan fund.

Eight years ago he was appointed by the board of bishops to raise $10 000 to pay a debt on the Metropolitan church at Washington. Within four years the work was successfully accomplished. His fine presence, magnetic speeches and extraordinary [illegible] [illegible] render him especially successful in this kind of work. Per[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] of Winnowed Hymns.

[An] African able and energetic man will travel thousands of miles to attend the conference. Missionary Bishop William Taylor is the person referred to. No man in the Methodist church can show such a record of work as he. He has [illegible] after joining [illegible] [illegible] in 1846 he [served] consecutively the following circuits: [illegible] Fincastle and Sweet Springs. He was two years stationed at Georgetown D C and one year at North Baltimore [illegible] For seven years he labored in San Francisco. He then traveled in [illegible] as an evangelist for five years in the [eastern] states and in Canada. Afterward he went to Australia laboring on the [illegible] seven months in England and Ireland. He has taken throughout Europe and has explored Palestine and the pyramids of Egypt. New Zealand the Australian colonies and Tasmania have heard his voice. He has brought thousands of Africans to believe in Christ. He has been in all the West India islands, in British Guiana, in South America. In the Indian empire he has performed miracle[s] [illegible] in less than four years churches in Bombay, Poonah, Calcutta, Madras and Bangalore. "No evangelist of modern times can equal him. His work has been marvelously successful wherever he has gone and it is probable that the conference when it meets next spring will reward his services by electing him a resident bishop."

One of the strangest characters who will attend the conference is Sen Sek Ong, the Chinese delegate. He will appear in [his] [illegible] full Oriental costume. He [illegible] a man of commanding presence [and] is said to be an eloquent speaker. [Japan] will be represented by [illegible] director of Tokio Eewa Gakko college.

The stock market to day presented a marked contrast to that of yesterday, being [illegible] only much quieter sales reaching barely one-half those recorded yesterday but it was firm to strong throughout the day and fluctuations were confined to comparatively narrow limits. [illegible] [illegible] still continued to be the most important factor in the course of prices and though a halt [illegible] was apparent the situation was looked upon with much less apprehension and bears being deterred from putting out further short lines there was covering and more buying for long account.

Yesterday morning Messrs E R Holden Daniel Guggenheim Meyer Guggenheim and E B Kirby arrived from Pueblo and registered at The Antlers. Mr Holden informed a GAZETTE reporter that the site of his smelting plant had not been definitely settled but that a decision would be reached in the course of the next five days. He stated that several matters had arisen which he regretted would prevent him from making a definite proposition to the board of trade. In the afternoon the party visited the smelting site at Colorado City and on their return had a conference with the special committee of the board of trade—a report which appears among the proceedings of the board of trade in another column. Mr Holden and the Messrs Guggenheim went to Denver on the Salt Lake express last evening but Mr Kirby remained at The Antlers.

Both branches of congress yesterday by way of varying the monotony of their daily proceedings indulged in a spirited discussion of issues which were supposed to have been settled years ago. Strange to say nothing was heard from Senator W E Chandler of New Hampshire on this all-absorbing topic

The action of the city council in appointing a special committee to confer with the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad company regarding an over crossing on Huerfano street is to be commended. The committee should lose no time in accomplishing the object for which it was appointed. The necessity for some precautionary steps is urgent and imperative.

The Ute Chief of Glenwood Springs last week issued a large edition of 15 000 copies descriptive of the resources of Glenwood Springs and northwestern Colorado. The reading matter was prepared under the supervision of the Glenwood board of trade. It is admirably arranged and contains some very interesting facts concerning that section of the state. The people of Glenwood Springs are to be congratulated on having such an enterprising paper as "The Ute Chief."

One of our stock papers has the following which will strike a responsive chord in the heart of any one who has seen the cattle starving on the plains. "Probably it will be a good idea for our next legislature when it convenes to [illegible] a law to protect starving dumb animals in the winter time. Men should be [illegible] by law [illegible] who keep cattle and [illegible] with providing food when there is none in the fields. We have people among us who never give the subject a thought that a cow brute as well as a human brute needs food and shelter

A letter to the Denver News gives some very interesting facts regarding Fort Worth Texas which will soon be so intimately connected with this state. Fort Worth had but one thousand inhabitants before the advent of the Texas Pacific in 1876. The city began with the policy of encouraging railroads. Since 1876 they have given one million and a half to railroads, either in money or lands. The wisdom of this policy has been amply shown by the results. It now is a city of thirty thousand inhabitants six banks three street railway lines, seven good school houses, and many other public buildings. Last year eighty four thousand eight hundred and fifty three carloads of freight were received, and on an average of between two and three hundred cars loaded a day

Henry Cabot Lodge has made a report on the McDuffie Davidson contest which is giving him considerable of a reputation. The voters' returns showed a plurality of eleven thousand for Davidson, the democratic candidate, and at the first blush there hardly seems to be any ground for a contest. When the democrats first obtained control of the Alabama legislature, they gerrymandered the state so that the strong republican counties should be concentrated in one strong republican district. It was conceded then that this district would probably always remain republican. But the democrats were so successful in carrying the other districts that they were anxious to have a unanimous democratic delegation from Alabama. The democratic members of the house committee in considering the evidence in this contest, threw out a good many democratic vot[es] and r[educ]ed the majority from eleven thousand to eighty eight hundred. When returns are made containing such glaring errors very little reliance can be placed upon them. In Judge McDuffie's own county his friends saw that he had a fair count. In that county the returns were McDuffie 2070 and Davidson 594. In the four other counties the evidence of fraud is simply overwhelming. Knowing beforehand that fraud would be committed, republican inspectors were placed at each voting place. In one of those precincts Mt Hope where there were but one hundred and sixty two votes Davidson democrat received three hundred and ninety nine. At Gee's Bend there were ten white and one hundred and thirty one colored voters. Davidson's vote was one hundred and ninety. The republican committee closes its report with the following opinion

This review of the testimony seems to the minority to show conclusively and overwhelmingly that a conspiracy to carry the election of November 2 1886 in the fourth congressional district of Alabama existed and was carried out successfully in four of the five counties of the district. They have no doubt that if the vote had been honestly counted Judge McDuffie would have been returned by a large majority

JERRY BALDWIN'S BROKEN NECK

It Gives Him Great Inconvenience but Doesn't Cause His Death.

Jerry Baldwin of Birmingham Ala has lived a year with a broken neck, and although it does not enjoy him [illegible] world [illegible] he has had the pleasure of confounding all the doctors [illegible] some [illegible] science and [illegible] over $100 000 in the [illegible]. What adds to the wonder is that many other bones were broken as well as the cervical vertebrae and when he was picked up the doctors said he was dying and left him to nature for several hours. As he was a very strong and healthy man he pulled through and now ranks with Alexis St Martin, the man with a side door to his stomach.

Jerry [illegible] Baldwin was born in New York city in 1857 and [illegible] master [illegible] ming ham Ala for the Louisville and Nashville railroad. Before daylight of March 19 he was sitting in a caboose on a side track when a runaway engine came down the track at terrific speed, and struck the train to which the caboose was attached. He fell to the track and the engine and several cars ran over him breaking his right leg in two places, his left leg and five ribs besides snapping the sixth cervical vertebra of the neck and splintering the joint between the sixth and seventh vertebrae. All his clothes were torn off and a very ugly hole was made in his side. He was taken home and laid upon a bed to die, as the doctors said he must in a few minutes. But when at the end of six hours he was found to be breathing stronger, Drs Guckle Copland and Barclay determined upon a series of experiments to save his life in which they were finally successful. After resetting as many of the bones as possible they encased him wholly in a plaster of paris frame, and thus firmly straightened he lay on a rubber mattress filled with water for four months. After that he lay two months in bed. For fourteen days he was totally blind and for six months was only occasionally conscious then his recovery began to be noticeable from day to day

JERRY L BALDWIN

Dr A J Baxter of Chicago, designed for him a corset reaching from the hips to the back of the neck and holding his body firmly in position at the top of it a flexible bar of steel is attached which rises above his head and to this is wired a "jury mask" which holds his head up. The weight of the head thus rests upon the hips. The experiment of removing the mask has been tried, but the head at once sinks upon the spinal column the neck being useless, and he relapses into a comatose condition. Nor can he lie down and the only sleep he gets is in short naps in a chair. His right arm is useless but the left is strong enough to handle a cane and do other services and he can walk with little assistance. His wife accompanies him everywhere and by cheerful and pleasant ways lightens greatly the burden of his life. To say that his case astonishes all the doctors, is putting it mildly, and he has received the proceeds of many lectures in medical circles and obtained $[illegible] damages from the railroad company.

WILLIAM PENN IN BRONZE

A Statue of Pennsylvania's Founder to Be Put Up in Philadelphia.

A colossal statue of William Penn in bronze, to be placed on the clock tower of the new city hall of Philadelphia is being constructed in this city. [illegible] model will be set up in [illegible] the Public Buildings and is now being molded

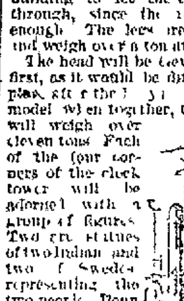

As the figure of the great Quaker [illegible] Macaulay [illegible] who [illegible] the [illegible] of the inhabitants of the City of Brotherly Love, is to stand at an elevation of 500 feet it is necessary that it be colossal or it would look like a pigmy. Forty feet is the length from head to foot or rather from the crown of the hat which will weigh half a ton and is twenty two feet around the Quaker brim. The artists have been obliged to cut a hole in the roof of the building to let the crown of the hat through, since the room is not high enough. The legs are twenty feet long and weigh over a ton and a half

The head will be cast and put in position first, as it would be difficult to get it in place after the [illegible] model when together, though all [illegible], will weigh over eleven tons. Each of the four corners of the clock tower will be adorned with a group of figures. Two groups of two Indians and two Swedes representing the two people Penn found on his arrival in America. These figures are one-quarter the size of the centre [illegible] one. The [illegible] will represent [illegible] pictures and statues of [illegible] are accustomed [illegible] him in early manhood [illegible]

loyalty to the president and his party is unquestioned

The impression has gone out that he has been opposing the president [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] that he was [illegible] to Senator Voorhees [illegible] [illegible] place [illegible] Democrat [illegible] This story I am assured is untrue and a true story of his rebuff of a politician is quite [illegible] contrary. This politic [illegible] thought Dickinson was an ardent spoilsman [illegible] came in and effectively [illegible] saying

I [illegible] at last got a man in the cabinet who is a good Democrat, and [illegible] the postoffice of the United State [illegible] longer be held by Republicans.

He was going on to criticise the pre[illegible] while Mr Dickinson [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] president [illegible]

[illegible] I [illegible] you to leave [illegible] immediately

The politician was thunderstruck and [illegible]

"Why, what's the matter?"

I want you to understand [illegible] that no man can criticise President Cleveland in this office [illegible] policy and I believe that everything that he has done and is doing [illegible] executive [illegible] I want no more of such talk here, and I want no more of you. Get out of here—get right out

It is needless to say the politician left and as a rule [illegible] I won't [illegible] advise any one else to try the same game

postmaster general then and there served notice on the company that when ever any corporation trampled upon his rights he would defend himself, and the corporation could act as they pleased in regard

I don't imagine that Mr Dickinson felt sore after cutting down the electric light pole. He is not a heavy man, but his muscles are iron and he keeps them in good order by exercise. He is very fond of [playing] ten pins, and he is one of the most expert [ten pin] players in Detroit. He delights in a ten pin game called "cocked hat."

Postmaster General Dickinson lives at Washington in a fine brick house on Farragut square, not far off from Secretary Whitney's and just across the reservation from Senator Stanford's. He is within a stone's throw of the White House, and not far from the millionaire Corcoran's mansion. He lives very well here, and is worth, I am told, $250,000. His wife is a fine looking woman, who came originally from Grand Rapids, and whose receptions here have been largely attended.

Postmaster General Dickinson was a great friend of Tilden, and he always visited Tilden when he came east. He stands in the head of the Democratic party of Michigan and it is largely due to him, I am told, that that state became a doubtful one. Zach Chandler used to say that any man could carry Michigan, but after Dickinson was chairman of the state central committee the Republicans were not so confident, and the late election in [illegible] district, in which the Republican majority was so radically reduced, leads to a great query as to how the state will go this fall. Dickinson's work has been for the purification of the politics of his party, and he downed, I am told, the syndicate which a large number of Democratic congressmen of Michigan formed to control the offices at the beginning of the present administration. His admiration for and allegiance to Cleveland were shown at the prayer which he made at one of the conventions, in which, with uplifted hand and solemn voice, he said "God bless and save and keep that Democrat of Democrats, the noblest of them all, Grover Cleveland, president of the United States."

Do you wonder that the president thought of him when he was looking out for a new cabinet officer?

I don't [illegible]

It [was] my fortune to have had perhaps the last long interview with the late Mr [illegible]

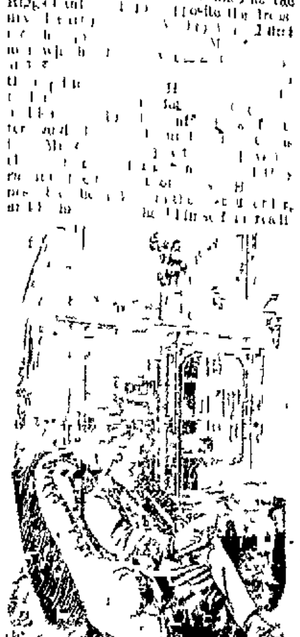

[illegible] Postmaster General D[illegible] [is] ordinarily the fullest [illegible] man that ever cut an office seeker's throat. He is the Chesterfield of the cabinet as he was the Chesterfield of the Michigan bar. A man of a strong social and literary taste, he makes friends everywhere and he is president of the Detroit club, the leading social organization of Detroit. He is president of his college class society and he evidently believes with Marcus Aurelius that man's social nature should be cultivated as well as his moral and intellectual nature.

He has, as a Michigan statesman tells me, a large sympathy for the poor. He has done a great deal of "Thank you" business at the law and his poor and non paying clients have been many.

I have heard many instances of his kindness and I will here state that none of the information in this letter comes from [him] or through him. He is noted for his loyalty to his friends and it is said that he has never forgotten a kindness. He has remembered even the little favors that were done him during his boyhood days and I heard yesterday of how he took care of an old sailor who was a tar when he was in short clothes, and who, when he grew a little older, used to tell him stories which appealed to his imagination as strongly as those of Othello did to Desdemona's. I think the sailor left for a cruise shortly before Dickinson grew up but a few years ago he came back to Detroit poor old and broken in health. Mr Dickinson got him a place in a hospital at Detroit and saw that he was fixed with a good berth for the rest of his life. He was, I am told, that a good doctor was provided for him, and my informant states that the old sailor does not probably know today to whom he is indebted for the kindness.

Don Dickinson has always been a strong anti-corporation man. He sold his inter[est] [illegible] the cabinet [illegible] fear that it might be considered as influencing his actions in the postoffice department, and I am told that he would not take a premium for it. As a schoolboy he was fond of denouncing corporations among his fellows, and his hobby [illegible] hating societies was, I am told, corporations. He does not believe in allowing [illegible] to trample on his rights and a few years ago the Brush Electric Light company introduced their system in Detroit. They put up horribly ugly pine poles along the streets and in many cases did not ask [illegible] One day Dickinson was [illegible] court. He came home late and as he approached his handsome brick house on Front street he saw one of these white electric light poles standing as a sentinel before his front gate. Its foot was imbedded in the earth and it appeared to defy him as Casabianca did the fire on the burning deck. The limbs of his favorite tree had been clipped to make room for it and as Mr Dickinson saw it his lower lip went up and his classical brows came down into a frown. His nostrils quivered with rage. He [illegible] [quickly] into the house, took off his frock coat, and vest, and seized an [axe] which had an edge like a razor. It took just twenty cuts to lay that electric light pole low, and the future

It was [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] a [illegible] of the [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] Its [illegible] gallery [illegible] paintings on its walls [illegible] furniture of which is gorgeously upholstered in [illegible], and the windows of which look out upon the White House. The room is much the same as when Daniel Webster gave his big dinners here as secretary of state [illegible] when, afterward [illegible] dined the diplomats here. I crossed this room to go to the library and here

dressed in a suit of the latest style and [illegible] [illegible] reading one of the poets

He asked me to [illegible] and for a couple of hours we chatted pleasantly together. This library has been one of his favorite rooms and he conceived the idea for it when he was in France, years ago. It is finished in old oak, its walls are so painted that they correspond with the furniture and the whole seems to be carved out of English oak. The mantel is the central piece of the room, and it was carved by a French artist and brought here from Paris. It has figures of life size on pedestals beside the great mirror, and these are cut out as smoothly as though they were marble. This mantel reaches to the ceiling, and it has a clock embedded just over the fire and this ticked a continuous welcome as I remained in the room

MR CORCORAN'S MANTEL

Mr Corcoran showed me his autograph letters and he has a book case filled with them. They contain the signatures of [illegible] Webster, Clay, Humboldt and nearly all of the presidents [illegible] of them of a social nature written to Mr Corcoran himself. Some few of them contain unwritten history, and Mr Corcoran told me that he [illegible] [illegible] for private circulation after his death and it may be that they will eventually [illegible]

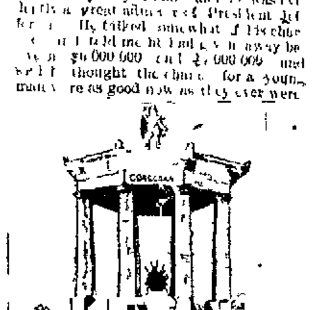

[illegible] his [illegible] paintings of [illegible] his dearest [illegible] looked down from the walls and a bust of Daniel Webster stood [illegible] the [illegible] of Mrs Cleve[land] [illegible] statuette of King William of [Holland] [illegible] Prussia stood near a stuffed [illegible] which [illegible] one of the [illegible] [illegible] The pictures and given to Mr Corcoran [illegible] three generations in mementoes cover [illegible] the present. Their [illegible] and [illegible] and the present seemed to be [illegible] jumbled together

I expressed an admiration for the library, and Mr Corcoran asked me to take a look over the house

The dining room is the largest private dining room in Washington. Its side board was filled with rich old plate, and [illegible] from the courts of Europe were [illegible] from the statuettes about the walls. I [illegible] the statuettes [illegible] and then found that Mr Corcoran was very proud of his house, and justly so. He showed me some photographs of its different rooms, from which the [illegible] taken. He showed me a photograph of his monument at Oak Hill cemetery, and as he pointed it out to me he said: "I have [illegible] [my] house here and now I will show you my last home. His voice did not tremble as he said so and the temple of Grecian style with eight columns of marble, [illegible] for him

At [illegible] I called upon [him] [illegible] and his [illegible] was unfortunately [illegible] the [illegible] [illegible] with his head [illegible] the pillows. I was told [illegible] that the [illegible] had only [illegible] twelve hours [illegible] is a wheel [illegible] feeling [illegible] well as when in the prime [illegible] [illegible] he [illegible] He talked at this [illegible] the president as he had known [illegible] of his call upon John Adams at Quincy, Mass. He talked very kindly [illegible] John Quincy Adams and [illegible] a great admirer of President [Polk] [illegible] He talked somewhat of his charities and said that he had given away be[tween] $6 000 000 and $7 000 000 and [illegible] thought the chances for a young man were as good now as they ever were.

MR CORCORAN'S TOMB

Mr Corcoran's fortune was largely made in Washington real estate. He [has] had a keen eye for investment and his private secretary tells me that even during these latter years he has been able to direct in an instant what he wanted to do in business matters. He has been bold and yet conservative. He has believed in Washington real estate and his estate comprises some of the best property in the District of Columbia. He was taxed for nearly $1 000,000, and the assessments [illegible] more than half the value of the property. Much of the property which he [bought] [illegible] a few cents a foot is now worth dollars and he has, I judge, more than an acre of land where he lived which is worth $6 a square foot. He has made a great deal of money by dealing in government securities. He was a close adviser of President Polk. He made a nice little thing out of placing the Mexican loan and during later years even thing he has touched seems to have turned into gold. At present the fruits of his charities have [illegible] very largely in value and the Corcoran art gallery is worth three times what it was when he donated it to the public.

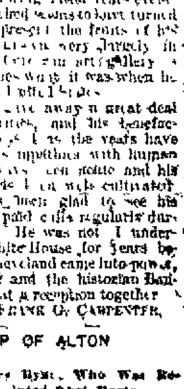

Mr Corcoran [has] given away a great deal in private charities, and his benefactions [illegible] the years have gone on. His sympathies with human nature have always been acute and his social nature has [been] [illegible] cultivated. He has always been glad to see his friends and has paid calls regularly during the season. He was not, I understand, at the White House for years before Pres[iden]t Cleveland came into power, but at [illegible] he and the historian Bancroft were seen at a reception together.

BISHOP OF ALTON

The Rev Father Ryan, Who Was Recently Appointed from Rome

The new bishop of Alton, the Rev James Ryan came to America when he was 6 years old and since then he has devoted him[self] to the Catholic church. His work [illegible] [has] been very successful, and he [is] highly esteemed by [illegible]

BISHOP RYAN

He was born in Thurles, Tipperary, [County] Ireland in 1848. He received his education in the seminaries of St Thomas and St Joseph Bardstown, Ky. He finally became a teacher in the St Joseph seminary. He afterward became [illegible] [in] the Kentucky mission, and [for] seven years he was located at St Martin, Meade county, and at Elizabethtown, Hardin county, Ky.

About ten years ago he changed the field of his labors and went to Peoria, Ills. He served on the diocese of Illinois at Watega and Danville and in 1881 he went to Ottawa, where he filled the vacancy caused by the transfer of the Rev. Patrick Terry to Chicago. Dr Terry's successor filled his place very successfully, and the church prospered under his administration.

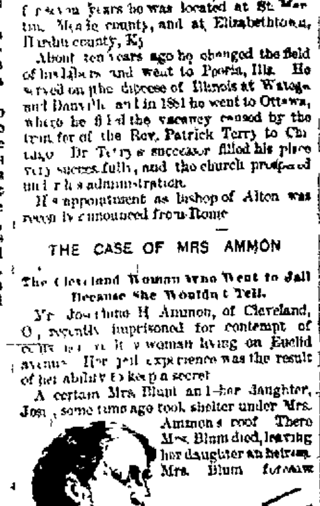

His appointment as bishop of Alton was recently announced from Rome

THE CASE OF MRS AMMON

The Cleveland Woman Who Went to Jail Because She Wouldn't Tell.

Mrs Josephine H Ammon, of Cleveland, O., recently imprisoned for contempt of court [illegible] [illegible] woman living on Euclid avenue. Her jail experience was the result of her ability to keep a secret

A certain Mrs Blum and her daughter, Josi[e], some time ago took shelter under Mrs. Ammon's roof. There Mrs. Blum died, leaving her daughter an heiress. Mrs. Blum [illegible]

tru[st] [for] her daughter, and exacted certain promises from Mrs Ammon, the exact nature of which does not appear

True enough trouble arose at once, it being claimed by interested parties that the daughter is incompetent to manage her estate. Josephine left Mrs. Ammon's house [illegible] after her mother's funeral and her [illegible] whereabouts is unknown. The case came up in the courts and Mrs. Ammon was asked to state where she had communicated with the [girl] or whom she might suppose had the girl in charge. Mrs Ammon refused to answer the question. She was given till the next morning to consider. The next morning she again refused and was fined $100 and [illegible] until she should answer

The [illegible] remained for several weeks, and it appeared at one time that her term of durance might last as long as that of Miss Rebecca Jones did in New York. Miss Jones, it will be remembered, refused to testify and was shut up for many months. But Mrs. Ammon has now been rel[eas]ed on bail, and she and her friends are correspondingly happy.

The Only Fat Villain

The appearance of the only fat villain in fiction, Count Fosco, is explained by Wilkie Collins. He says that "he made him fat because a lady once made the remark at a dinner party that no novelist could make a really life like fat villain."—Chicago Herald

MR CORCORAN AND HIS LIBRARY

[Cor]coran's private residence for hospital purposes, but the old gentleman succeeded in thwarting the great War Secretary by a neat artifice. Through a friend he heard of the order and at once drove to the residence of Count Montholon the French minister, to whom he told the story and proffered the use of his residence free of all expense as long as the war should last. The count called one of his secretaries and with his legation flag entered Mr Corcoran's carriage and drove immediately to the house. Just as they entered the building and unfurled the flag in the hall two officers from the war department came up the steps with an order to take possession. The count calmly informed them that it was now the residence of the French minister and that Mr Corcoran was his guest. There were some pretty sharp words but the flag of France floated there and had to be respected. Although Stanton was a deeply religious man it is said that he fell from grace when the officers returned to the department and made their report. But [that] is how the matter ended

Seawall Sydney in a letter to The New York Mail and Express told this story of the manner in which Mr Corcoran discouraged the attentions of a foreigner to Louise Corcoran, afterward Mrs. Eustis:

Louise Corcoran was regarded as legitimate prey by all the designing members of the diplomatic corps in Washington. Mr Corcoran bitterly opposed her marriage to a foreigner, although professing perfect willingness for her to marry any deserving young man she fancied no matter how small his fortune, only he must be an American. But the young lady was full of life and liked admiration, as young things of her sex do. One day, when she was entertaining a forbidden admirer who was a member of the Spanish legation, she heard her father's step in the hall. The young [illegible] turned pale, as did the heedless girl. The step approached nearer—a hand was on the knob of the door—when Mr Grandee, forgetting all about his dignity, scampered under the grand piano in the corner. Mr Corcoran's eyes were too quick, though. Going back into the hall, he reappeared with a buggy whip, which he used vigorously on the shins of the grandee, who got out of the house as fast as his legs could carry him. That cured Miss Louise of foreigners, and shortly after she married Mr Eustis, of South Carolina, then a young member of the house. Her married life was very happy, but she did not live many years. In 1860 she died of consumption, leaving two sons and a daughter behind her. Her husband did not long survive her. The loss of this beloved child was an overwhelming blow to Mr Corcoran. Years after he could not speak of her without tears. Only a little while ago, in speaking of Gen Lee, with whom he was on terms of great intimacy, he said: "I have the last letter he ever wrote. It was upon the occasion of my child's death." He stopped and said no more, overcome with emotion

Mr Corcoran was an ardent Democrat, and for many years has announced his intention of living until a Democratic president was elected. His delight at Mr Cleveland's election was boundless. He and Mrs. Cleveland were great friends, and on his last birthday he showed with pride a splendid bouquet of La France roses, sent him by the lady of the White House

A Letter from John Bright

LONDON March 7—A letter from John Bright was read at a reception to Lord Hartington at Ipswich this evening. Bright reminded the liberal party that the Gladstonians had shirked discussion of the Gladstone bills which had ruined the party. He continued: They do not try to defend the bills. Nobody [illegible] [illegible] with the details of the bills or [is] willing to defend them. Gladstonians prefer to attack the government, to denounce Balfour and to spread abroad the terrorism, boycotting, outrages and murders that have disgraced Ireland and shocked mankind during the last seven years. Surely in all modern history there is no instance of humiliation so great as that to which the bulk of the liberals have been reduced by blindly following the leader who toward the close of a great career has committed a grievous error by adopting a policy to which the country will never consent and by his extravagant falsehoods about the barbarous manner in which the crimes act is enforced. They have great sympathy for the disloyal Irish leaders and for the priests who forget their true mission as one of peace not violence. But they say nothing in behalf of the humbler men imprisoned for offenses in-

[illegible] by gentlemen disturbers of the peace

Lord Hartington in a speech contended that the Unionist had every reason for [illegible] [illegible] increasing strength [illegible] [illegible] to maintain their [illegible] [illegible] danger [illegible] scheme of the Gladstonians [illegible] that Gladstone [illegible] policy [illegible]

Senator Ingalls did not show himself to be a great statesman in his speech on the "pension bills" but he showed himself to be a very shrewd man. Senator Vest is a very bright speaker but we do not believe that he will be in any hurry to measure swords with Senator Ingalls again. It is pretty plain now that Senator Ingalls is a candidate for the vice presidency.

The example of Fort Worth which has paid in ten years one million and a half in land and money for railroads ought to be thought of when an appeal is made for subscriptions. Twelve years ago Colorado Springs had its railroad and a population of 8000. Fort Worth at that time did not have a railroad and had less than a thousand population. To day Fort Worth has more than three times the population and five or six times the business.

Mayor Hewitt is one of the most courageous men in public life. While in congress he usually pursued a very independent course regardless of party dictation, but this independence served to lift him into prominence rather than to injure him. His course as mayor of New York has been universally approved, giving New York the strongest, cleanest and wisest administration it has had for many years. For this reason he has been much spoken of as a candidate for governor or president. Under these circumstances the independent politician ... Mr. Hewitt ... in the way. On Tuesday, according to a special to the Denver Republican, a delegation from the Irish societies called on Mr Hewitt and asked him to review a parade on St Patrick's day. Unfortunately the spokesman alluded to the fact that the mayor was largely elected by Irishmen. This fired the mayor, who said:

"I may be a candidate for mayor or president next fall," said he, "and may want all the democratic votes I can get. The Irish votes are for any particular candidate here would elect him, but for the purpose of getting this vote I will not come down to the level of reviewing any parade because of the nationality of its members, either Irish, German or Italian. I will review no parades except those I am officially called on as mayor to review."

We doubt if this action eventually hurts Mr. Hewitt very much with the Irish, themselves, for they must despise the average silk stocking politician who goes fawning about them just before election, and at other times feels too good to speak to them.

The people of Garfield county are all very indignant because a bill has been presented against that county or against Colorado for the ponies stolen from the Utes. The whole question is a very vexed one, but the citizens of Garfield county are certainly inconsistent. They began by trying to make these Indians subject to the courts and served civil process on them through regular civil officers. Under these circumstances the sheriff's posse ought to be held responsible for all that its members stole. If Garfield county had a bad man in for sheriff who employed very bad men for deputies it was their misfortune. Under the same circumstances all other counties have to pay their own bills. The people of Garfield county will have hard work to defend themselves before congress. We presume that few of our readers can appreciate the amount of annoyance and loss which these settlers suffered from the Indians during the past five or six years but it will be very difficult to make out a case before an eastern jury for this reason. Senator Teller now champions their cause. During the three years from the spring of '82 to the spring of '85 Secretary Teller was secretary of the interior. It was at all times within his power to have insisted that these Indians should have stayed on the reservations and he could have had the whole power of the army to keep them there if it was necessary. But if the citizens of Garfield county could not convince Secretary Teller during the three years that he was in office that these Indians were annoying and stealing from the settlers, eastern people will think that there cannot be much of a case. The conundrum we would like to have answered is why did not Secretary Teller settle this thing while he was in the cabinet.

CHILDREN'S FASHIONS.

AMERICAN LITTLE ONES ARE TO BE HEARD AS WELL AS SEEN

Olive Harper, in This Letter Tells How They Will Be Dressed This Spring, Sailor Caps, Fancy Tam O'Shanters, Turban Caps and Other Novelties.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, March 1.

THE little children of America are not of the kind that are expected to remember the commandment to be seen and not heard, and when the Easter fashions are displayed they start forward in their own manner and want to know what they are to have for the Easter. The ... old girl baby in this advanced country takes an evident interest in the styles, while the 6-year-old is an authority on the subject of spring millinery. How pretty they are, the children and their bonnets and hats, together or separately! Some wear their new toggery with a saucy, defiant air knowing well how abject is your adulation of them, others are serenely unconscious that they are too sweet for anything, while others again wear theirs with a delicious gravity and sense of their own importance, and the fact that somehow these new bonnets and hats always have to be worn first to church on Easter morning and so while the ... hopes walk looking gayly upward the precious ... faiths walk with

GIRL'S TAM O'SHANTER CAP.

Tam O'Shanters are made of velvet or plaids to match suits, of cloth, serge, silk, muslin white and colored pique and in short almost anything in the way of material. Everything is pretty upon a fresh young face, and over bright eyes and flowing hair, when it is made up with the daintiness that a child's garments demands. Grown people may wear slovenly made, or ill fitting garments, but it is like a law of nature for a child to require neatness and fine stitches and tasteful ornamentation in the making of its clothes. A stitch too large or a careless seam stands out ... to the fragile delicacy of the wearer.

With these pretty little suits there come little thread stockings colored or woven half way up in black or brown, and the rest in cream colored or pink thread. The effect is very pretty. White stockings for little girls also will be somewhat worn for full dress occasions.

The quaint little gown, of which back and front are presented, is in blue chambray, with yoke and cuffs of white all over embroidery. Tucks and a sash of the chambray ornament it. The last one is a garment which can be used as an apron or is a pretty little dress with a guimpe of any other color, with long or short sleeves as may be best suited to climate and child. Short sleeves with the addition of dainty little bows of ribbon on the shoulder showing the plump, waxen arms are so very pretty that where they can be made that way without danger to the little wearer they ought to be made so.

The chambrays and fine woven Scotch ginghams as well as other suitable spring fabrics, are all suitable for the neat and dressy little gowns we have chosen for presentation, and their style is so simple as to allow any woman to take in all their salient points at a glance. The little combination dress is made of pink and gray plaid gingham, with a front, bretelles and flounce
